Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 1-6 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Patent Abstract of Japan JP 10176046 as submitted by applicants.

The abstract discloses a copolymer capable of expressing excellent optical characteristics and sufficient heat resistance and mechanical strength by copolymerizing specific several kinds of bisphenols including those disclosed by applicants claim language. This polycarbonate copolymer comprises 5-95mol.% of repeating units of formula I

Formula 1]

(R1, R2 are each methyl, ethyl; R3 is a 1-6C alkyl) and 95-5mol.% of repeating units selected from repeating units of formula II (R4, R5 are each H, a 1-6C alkyl, etc.; X is a group of formula III, etc.; A is a single bond, a 2-4C alkylene) and repeating units of formula IV (R7, R8 are each a 1-6C alkyl, a 6-10C aryl; Y is a group of formula V, etc.). The copolymer has a reducing viscosity ( $\eta_{sp}/c$ ) of at least 0.3dl/g in a 0.5g/dl concentration solution at 20°C, a photoelastic coefficient of  $\leq 70 \times 10^{-13} \text{cm}^2/\text{dyne}$ , and a glass transition temperature of at least 95°C. The copolymer is obtained by melt-polycondensing a bisphenol compound with a diaryl carbonate in a specific ratio.

Thus, the reference discloses a polycarbonate containing polystyrene therein prepared from the same components as claimed by applicants. Note applicant(s) "having " is open language and does not exclude those additional moieties etc. disclosed herein. Any properties or characteristics inherent in the prior art, e.g. elastic modulus although unobserved or detected by the reference, would still anticipate the claimed invention. Note In re Swinehart, 169 USPQ 226. "It is elementary that the mere recitation of a newly discovered...property, inherently possessed by things in the prior art, does not cause claim drawn to those things to distinguish over the prior art". Since the disclosed parameters are expressed differently and thus may be distinct from those claimed, it is incumbent upon applicant(s) to establish that they are in fact different and whether such difference is unobvious. In view of the above, there appears to be no significant difference between the reference and that which is claimed by applicant(s). Any differences not specifically mentioned appear to be conventional. Consequently, the claimed invention cannot be deemed as novel and accordingly is unpatentable.
